Bird Hunting Season Opens

Today, October 1, the wraps come off on Maine's 1953 hunting season, and conservative estimates by personnel of the Inland Fish and Game Department indicate that close to 100,000 nimrods will be in the fields and woods of the Pine Tree State in search of legal game this year.

A major portion of the hunters will be after birds—pheasant, partridge, and woodcock, but with the season open on rabbits and squirrels also, the small fur bearers are sure to receive their share of interest.

Over 22,000 pheasants have been stocked in the covers of the State by the Fish and Game Department this year, and they should supply some fast and sporty shooting for the gunners Maine's old reliable, the ruffed grouse or partridge, will be doing business at the same old stand however, and will this year, as every year supply his share of hits and misses with the emphasis decidedly on the misses. Often called the king of the game birds, the partridge is one of the most difficult targets for the hunter, and those lucky enough to bag their birds will undoubtedly have earned them.

Woodcock are not expected to make up too large a proportion of the hunter's bag on opening day, since they are a migratory species and so far it appears that the fall flights have not yet gotten underway. Later in the month, as the season progresses, the picture will change and more and more hunters will add woodcock to their day's take.

Reports coming in to the Fish and Game Department indicate that rabbit hunting success throughout the State will vary with the area. Some sections report rabbits numerous and all signs pointing to good hunting. In other areas the populations are spotty and the gunners will have to look for them.

The season this year on pheasants and partridge extends through November 15, and the season on woodcock continues until November 8. Rabbits may be hunted until March 1, and squirrels throughout the month of October.

FALL TROUT STOCKING

PROGRAM NOW UNDERWAY

Every day will be "moving day" for trout in hatcheries of the Fish and Game Department throughout the State during the next month or six weeks as the annual fall stocking of the State's trout waters gets underway. By the time the 400,000 more fish will have found new homes in suitable habitat in all the 16 counties.

Stocking activities of the Hatchery Division of the Department have been slowed down and seriously hampered by continued low water in brooks and streams. Because this condition has continued into the fall, it will be necessary to put more emphasis on lakes and ponds where there is sufficient water to maintain the fish life. At present, 12 tank trucks are on the road in an attempt to complete the stocking as soon as possible.

1st Grade Boy Hospitalized by Eye Injury

David Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Brown, is a patient at the Central Maine General Hospital, Lewiston, where he was taken Wednesday afternoon. He suffered an eye injury when struck by a rock thrown by a child while on the primary school grounds. He is a first grade pupil. It is expected that he can return home the first of next week.

This is the third reported accident on school playgrounds this fall. On Sept. 10 Gerald Walker of South Bethel received a broken arm in a fall at the Crescent Park School. Sept. 11, Mrs. Hazel Wheeler, primary school teacher, suffered a broken hip in a fall from the merry-go-round at the primary school.

Last year on Sept. 23, Carolyn Tibbitts of South Bethel was severely injured when struck in the face by a softball bat at the Crescent Park School.

MAINE MOST BEAUTIFUL IN FALL, SAYS GREATON

For years many people have deplored the tradition bound habit of arbitrarily sending Maine's travel season around Labor Day. To paraphrase an old saying, folks who haven't seen our state after that date don't know what they're missing. Maine "natives" everywhere agree the autumnal beauties lavished upon us on all sides make September and, indeed, much of October rank with our loveliest months.

Everett F. Gration, Executive Director of the Maine Development Commission, is one who has consistently advocated placing increased emphasis upon this particular season just dawning.

Gration's reward in the interest people everywhere are evincing in viewing fall foliage here, an interest he has actively fostered. Out of the whole calendar, right now is Mother Nature's favorite time for the most eye-catching samples of her sublime witchcraft. She has recklessly dipped the brush into fairy-like colors no man-made pigments can equal, so that already roadsides and hilltops are arrayed in their most vivid garments.

The next fortnight will witness a gradual climaxing of this annual pageant, when all outdoors becomes a tapestry for riotously blended hues.

This transformation is currently just commencing; greens are steadily giving way to light pastels which, in turn, shall be supplanted by earthy bright reds and bordered bronzes. Daily this mysterious alchemy progresses, to reach its peak October 3-4. By then, the countryside is aflame with competing colorations, scarlets and russets from the maples, graded shades of yellows from the slender birches; lastly, deep solid mahoganis from the oaks.

Numerous tours are being suggested to capture such unforgettable sights at their height. These tours are not of an official nature; instead, they can be taken informally in the family car, constituting a delightful excursion into Maine's Indian Summer Wonderland. Director Gration is personally preparing such trips, which, incidentally, provide a photographic's Paradise. Judging from the inquiries his office is handling, this fall will find more people than ever before taking advantage of Nature's gorgeous artistry.

Speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord. (Ephesians 5:19.) Read Philippians 1:27-30.

It was a summer day in 1946, after the tragic division of Korea took place. From North Korea a train had stopped at the first station in South Korea and unloaded a crowd of people. The refugees soon found themselves in a warehouse as a place for overnight shelter. It was dark and there was a dead silence. Their hearts were torn with sadness and with fear.

Suddenly someone from a dark corner started to sing a familiar hymn. A score of people responded and gradually the number increased. To identify oneself as a Christian was very risky in those days. But now their hearts were united

In courage because they knew that all the singers belonged to one great family of faith, and they were free to give expression to their faith.

Faith is strengthened in the hearts of us believers when together we face hardships and trials. There is no stronger fellowship than the fellowship of those who share the same faith and mutual loyalty to their Master, Jesus Christ.

Prayer

O merciful Father help us to acknowledge that we are Thy children in spite of our failures. Make us to forget all the trifles of the world, for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Thought For The Day
True faith produces unity.
—Harold S. Hong (Korea)

By LYN CONNELLY

Tony Martin has been approached by interests wanting him to appear in a Broadway musical production of "Casablanca" this coming fall. . . . The play, a musical comedy, would be based on the familiar Bogart-Bergman movie of some years back. . . . Tony would be a natural in the role of Rick, but whether he can be lured away from Hollywood and his beautiful wife, Cyd Charisse, remains to be seen. . . . Walter O'Reilly, jovial quizmaster of "Wizard of Odds", tells the story about the drunk who walked into a open elevator shaft and fell three stories. . . . He stood up, carefully brushed himself off and replaced his hat. "Damn it," he exclaimed, "I said up!"

Because Frank Sinatra did such an excellent job with his dramatic role in "From Here to Eternity," he has once more become a valuable property. . . . Lending that acting plum was a good break for the splendid crooner of yesterday, and he made the most of the opportunity. . . . Apparently he realized for the first time that his back was against the wall. . . . "My Little Margie" and her wolf-dogfather are back on TV this fall. . . . It's incredible the following list of fluff has.

PLATTER CHATTER
CAPITOL—This company has some wonderful 33 1/2 album discs among which are especially recommended, "Moods for Starlight" starring Francis Scott and his orchestra. . . . Numbers include "Haunted Heart," "What a Difference a Day Made," "I'll Remember April," "My Foolish Heart," "Easy to Love," "I Have Eyes," etc. . . . Also on 33 1/2 are a collection of Benny Goodman gems—"Lazy River," "Puttin' on the Ritz," "Lonesome Road," "Mean to Me," "Fine and Dandy," "Shoe Shine Boy," "Benny's Boogie," and "Sweet Lorraine."

Duke Ellington's collection of hits is also a collector's item. Songs include "Star Dust," "I Can't Give You Anything But Love," etc. . . . Drivers, watch carefully for children going to and from school and playing in school areas. A moment of carelessness on your part might result in a lifetime of regret. Our State Police remind us that children can be expected to do the unexpected.

Parents, be sure to check your youngsters' bicycle habits. Our State Police suggest that you take the time to go over with him the safe riding rules and be absolutely certain that he understands them. Insist upon his compliance with these rules and deprive him of the privilege of using his bike if he fails to do so.

The barefoot boy trudging down an empty road toward a little red schoolhouse is a nostalgic memory for many of us. But in our modern age, school busses are carrying many children to and from consolidated schools. Yes, September is back-to-school month, and our State Police urge all motorists to watch for children crossing the road to and from school busses. Maine law requires a motorist to STOP "upon meeting or overtaking from either direction any school bus which has stopped on the way for the purpose of receiving or discharging any school children". Furthermore, the driver "shall not proceed until such bus resumes motion, or until signaled by the school bus driver to proceed".

Forest Fires Come Out of Your Pocket!

That's right, you pay plenty for forest fires. Just the labor of extinguishing forest fires costs you and other Americans over $50 million each year!

Add to that the tremendous loss of timber, the damage to watersheds, the loss of beautiful recreational areas and wildlife, and the price you pay is staggering.

And here's the ironical part: Out of your pocket also come the very things—the matches and smokes—that cause forest fires. There can be no arguing with facts...and the facts show that 9 out of 10 forest fires are caused by people...people like you.

The prevention of forest fires rests in your hands. You must be careful—exceedingly careful—with matches, smokes, campfires. This year be sure that every flame, every spark is dead! Help stop America's most shameful waste.

Remember—only you can PREVENT FOREST FIRES!

OLD HAND WITH CARS

By F. L. Rowley

THE couple that entered my garage on a cool afternoon last autumn looked around as if they expected to find a fire-breathing dragon.

I could see that they were pitifully young to shop; yet this was their obvious intention. The slim girl carried her overnight case just a bit too casually. From time to time she turned her pretty, unpacked face up to the bulky broad-shouldered youth at her side for reassurance.

"We'd like to rent one of your cars," said the boy earnestly. "Bill Shipley said you might let us have one."

This sort of thing is a different light, Bill Shipley and I were old friends. I couldn't imagine why Bill would send a couple of kids like this over to me. Cars was my hobby—not my business. Why I hadn't rented a car and in about a year.

"Plan on getting spotted, do you?" I sized him up.

They exchanged glances. Then the young chap put a question and around the girl's shoulders and turned to me with a direct look that I liked.

"Yes, we do. Didn't think it showed. Do we get the car?"

"On one condition," I said, wading over to the last of my three old cars, "and that is, don't go over forty-five. By the way, where do you live?"

"Shipleyville," said the boy after hesitating a second. I believed him. Shipleyville boasted the only Justice of the Peace within thirty miles.

"Here's the key," I said a few minutes later after the car was started. "Now remember, not over forty-five. Pay me when you get back. Good luck to you."

There were tears of gratitude in the girl's eyes as she waved from the end of the drive. There was a pretty little beam in my own eyes as I watched them go. I had just sold my last car. I had just sold my last car.

Bill Shipley returned with a growl. When he heard my voice he slumped down. It was the first time he'd given me a civil word since I had tossed him in the summer road test.

"Say Mac, did two kids show up to rent one of your wrecks?"

"Yes," I replied, ignoring the crack, "and I gave them the best in the shop. Do you know them?"

POP TALKS WITH JUNIOR

If you can drive your car when all about you

The surging traffic hems and hampers you;

And trust yourself when pop and mother doubt you

Yet, make allowance for that doubtful, too—

If you can curb the urge to "make it faster";

If you can drive and not make speed your aim;

If you can keep your temper when disaster is barely missed—with someone else to blame—

If you can stand to hear the horns a-blowing,

Yet give a fellow turning left a break;

If you can bear to see the traffic flowing

And wait...and wait...and wait...for safety's sake—

If you can drive in crowds and not be frantic

And dodge the careless walkers all the while;

If, meeting with a crazy driver anvil,

You keep your driving pulse.... and still can smile—

If you can fill each dangerous highway minute

With sixty seconds cautious driving done—

There is the car and all the gas that's in it—

Here are the keys. Good luck to you, my son!

EASY DOES IT
BY HELEN HALE

ADD a few snips of green onion and chopped ripe olives to cottage cheese to make a very delicious omelet filling for a luncheon or supper.

Here are some simple but nourishing after-school or lunch box snacks that are healthful, too. Plump some prunes, remove the pits and stuff with a walnut, almond or maraschino cherry. Roll the prunes in a cinnamon-sugar mixture.

Do you like to serve interesting sauces on your vegetables? You'll like this simple one: combine equal parts of mayonnaise and soured

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

(Serves 6)

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup cold water
1 cup milk, scalded
3 ounces blue cheese
1 cup cottage cheese
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.
Soften gelatin in water and dissolve in scalded milk. Mash blue cheese with fork. Combine with cottage cheese and put through sieve. Combine cheese mixture, milk and seasonings. Pour into individual molds which have been rinsed in cold water. Chill until set.

cream and then stir in some prepared mustard for zippy flavor along with chopped roasted almonds.

Slip this dessert into the oven as you sit down to eat the meal and it will be warm and luscious by the time you're ready for dessert. Place 6 canned cling peach halves into a flat baking dish. Sprinkle with 1/2 cup brown sugar mixed with 1/2 cup orange juice heated for 3 minutes. Top with coconut and marshmallows and bake in a moderate (350°) oven for 20 minutes.

Motorists, the State Police ask us not to try to blow bike riders out of our way with sudden blast of the horn. Try to warn cyclists of your approach by blowing the horn gently while still some distance away. A sudden blast of the horn may cause a rider to become confused and to swing directly into the path of your car.

Soil tests tell farmers and gardeners what and how much lime and fertilizer they need to use. Soil samples should be sent to the Maine Experiment Station Soil Testing Laboratory, Plant Science Building, Orono. County agents of the Maine Extension Service have further information on soil testing.
